

COPYRIGHT TERMS

Positive Science - Arts

1. Copyright Ownership

Authors publishing in ARTS retain the copyright to their work. Copyright remains with the author(s) and is protected under applicable national and international copyright laws.

2. License to the Publisher

Upon acceptance for publication, authors grant the Publisher, POSITIVE SCIENCE, a non-exclusive, worldwide, and royalty-free license to publish, reproduce, distribute, communicate to the public, archive, and preserve the work in all media and formats, whether currently known or developed in the future.

This license enables the Publisher to make the work available through the ARTS website, academic platforms, institutional repositories, and indexing and abstracting services.

3. Creative Commons License

All articles published in ARTS are distributed under a Creative Commons license.

Unless otherwise specified, the journal applies the following license:

Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International (CC BY 4.0)

This license allows third parties to copy, distribute, and adapt the work for non-commercial purposes, provided that appropriate credit is given to the author(s) and the original source is cited, and that any changes are clearly indicated.

4. Moral Rights

In accordance with French law, authors retain their moral rights (droits moraux), including the right to be identified as the author of the work and the right to respect for the integrity of the work. These rights are perpetual, inalienable, and imprescriptible.

5. Third-Party Content

Authors are responsible for obtaining permission to use any third-party materials included in their work. Such permissions must allow for distribution under the applicable Creative Commons license.

6. Legal Framework

These Copyright Terms are governed by French law and are aligned with applicable European Union regulations, including the General Data Protection Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (GDPR), where relevant.
