

EDITORIAL BOARD

Positive Science - Arts

Legal responsibility (required information)

Publisher (Éditeur)

Positive Science SAS

Société par Actions Simplifiée (SAS)

Strasbourg, France

Director of Publication (Directeur de publication)

Aleksandr Platonov

President, Positive Science SAS

The Editorial Board of ARTS is composed of an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars committed to advancing high-quality research in the fields of art and cultural studies.

Board members contribute to the academic direction of the journal by supporting editorial policy, ensuring rigorous and ethical peer review standards, and promoting scholarly dialogue across disciplines and geographic contexts. They play an active role in fostering an inclusive, transparent, and intellectually open publishing environment.

The Editorial Board represents a broad range of expertise, including art history, cultural studies, philosophy, anthropology, sociology, media and communication studies, heritage studies, and related fields. This diversity reflects the journal's mission to approach art and culture as fundamental forms of human knowledge and self-expression.

Members of the Board serve as ambassadors for ARTS within the international academic community, supporting the journal's visibility, integrity, and ongoing development.